WHAT DOES ALLY DO WITH YOUR PERSONAL INFORMATION?

Why?
Financial companies choose how they share your personal information. Federal law gives consumers the right to limit some but not all sharing. Federal law also requires us to tell you how we collect, share, and protect your personal information. Please read this notice carefully to understand what we do.

What?
The types of personal information we collect and share depend on the products or services you have with us. This information can include:

- Social Security number and income
- Account balances and payment history
- Credit history and transaction history

How?
All financial companies need to share customers’ personal information to run their everyday business. In the section below, we list the reasons financial companies can share their customers’ personal information; the reasons Ally chooses to share; and whether you can limit this sharing.

| How does Ally protect my personal information? | We collect your personal information, for example, when you:
- open an account or deposit money
- apply for financing or provide account information
- pay your bills
We also collect your personal information from others, such as credit bureaus, affiliates, or other companies. |
| How does Ally collect my personal information? | Federal law gives you the right to limit only:
- sharing for affiliates’ everyday business purposes – information about your creditworthiness
- affiliates from using your information to market to you
- sharing for nonaffiliates to market to you
State laws and individual companies may give you additional rights to limit sharing. [See below for more on your rights under state law.] |
| Why can’t I limit all sharing? | Your choices will apply to everyone on your account. |
| What happens when I limit sharing for an account I hold jointly with someone else? | Your choices will apply to everyone on your account. |
